INTRODUCTION

The Endeavour 36 TrawlerCat is a mid-sized catamaran trawler whose spacious interior and comfortable ride make her a compelling alternative to conventional monohull trawlers. Built in St. Petersburg, Florida, the TrawlerCat is a more affordably priced boat than most of her catamaran counterparts. The TrawlerCat rides on a pair of full-displacement hulls, and a moderate 15 foot beam insures that she will fit into monohull slips without too much difficulty. The TrawlerCat helm is in the cockpit where it is protected by a hardtop and canvas enclosure panels. There are three staterooms below, one aft in each hull and the other forward and athwartships, forward of the salon dinette. A single head with a separate shower stall is in the forward starboard hull, and the galley area is found in the port hull. The exterior provides spacious seating and the wide side decks make maneuvering the decks easy.

Current owners have completed the Great Loop and report fuel consumption at 8 knots of 3 miles per gallon.

ACCOMMODATIONS

The aft deck is massive and allows easy access to the large swim platform with a walk through transom. From the aft deck forward into the cockpit/helm area and along each side are padded bench seating with folding table and walk-way between. Along the starboard side is the companion helm seat and to port is the helm area. The cockpit area is covered with a hardtop and the sides are canvas and eisenglass. The windshield opens to allow excellent air flow. From the cockpit and down two steps you enter the main salon. The entire interior features beautiful laminate teak and holly floors, matching fabrics, and expansive spaces. The salon features an "L" shaped settee along the port side and a matching built in seat along the starboard side. Additionally the starboard side has a folding dinette table. Forward the salon opens into the master stateroom through a small pass-through which can be closed for privacy. From the aft salon and down two steps you enter each hull. The port side hull offers a double berth aft with huge storage areas and the galley area is in the middle of the hull. All the way forward, you enter the master stateroom which features an elevated athwartships queen sized berth, small forward settee and a storage area. The master area has built-in bookshelves along the forward bulkhead. Down two steps into the starboard hull and aft is a double berth with huge storage areas (mirror image of the port stateroom). Directly in front of the steps is the electrical panel and additional storage and linen closet. Further forward is the head with large mirrored vanity, separate shower stall, and storage areas. Through the shower stall and into the forward hull there is access to the generator and additional storage shelf.

The space inside the TrawlerCat is expansive and feels like you are on a much larger yacht.
